The divergence of interest between the broadcaster and he manufacturer is the main handicap. Building television sets that sell from about $100 to more than $1,000, the manufacturer can expect profits in the immediate future. But the television broadcaster will operate on the red side of the ledger until he achieves "circulation"—until the set-owning public is large enough to attract edgesting apparent. The tract advertising sponsors. The broadcaster may lose money for years until he turns the corner. Some prophets say he will never turn the corner. Optimists feel, however, that good enterta nment will come very rapidly after a moderate-sized public is in possession of
